The Limits of British Colonial Control in South Asia

Spaces of Disorder in the Indian Ocean Region

Edited by Ashwini Tambe, University of Toronto, Canada and Harald Fischer Tiné, ETH Zurich, Switzerland

Assesses British colonialism in South Asia in a transnational light, with a focus on 'subaltern' groups and actors. Challenging the assumed stability of colonial rule, it analyses the ways in which the racial, class and moral order instituted by British colonial states was resisted and subverted.

Selected Contents: Introduction Ashwini Tambe and Harald Fischer-Tiné Part 1: Subaltern Mobility and the Problem of Control and Containment 1. Networks of Subordination and Networks of the Subordinated: The Case of South Asian Maritime Labour under British Imperialism (c. 1890-1947) Ravi Ahuja 2. Passport, Ticket, and India Rubber-stamp: 'The Problem of the Pauper Pilgrim' in Colonial India (c.1882-1925) Radhika Singha 3. 'Heshima' – British War Time Propaganda to East African Troops in Ceylon, (1943-45) Katrin Bromber Part 2: Subalternity, Race and the Transgression of Moral Boundaries 4. Discourses of Exclusion and the 'Convict Stain' in the Indian Ocean (c. 1800-1850) Clare Anderson 5. Flotsam and Jetsam of the Empire? European Seamen and Spaces of Disease and Disorder in mid-Nineteenth Century Calcutta Harald Fischer-Tiné 6. Degenerate Whites and their Spaces of Disorder: Disciplining Racial and class Ambiguities in Colonial Calcutta, (c. 1880 - 1930) Satoshi Mizutani 7. Moscow and the Emergence of Communist Power in China, 1925-30

NEW

The Nanchang Rising and the Birth of the Red Army

Bruce Elleman, US Naval War College, USA

The author examines the emergence of Communist power in China during the interwar period, focusing especially on the 1927 Nanchang Rising. It explains why the Communists created the myth that the Nanchang Uprising was a success, and later dated the origins of the People's Liberation Army to this event.

Selected Contents: Introduction 1. Origin of Soviet Factional Battles over the China Question 2. Chiang Kai-shek's 1926 Political Coup and the Formation of the United Opposition 3. The Northern Expedition and the United Front 4. Rocky Shoals Ahead-The Realignment of Forces in the United Front 5. Chiang's April 1927 Purge and the United Front 6. The United Opposition's Spring 1927 Campaign Against the Centrists 7. The Failure of the CCP-Left GMD Stage of the United Front Policy 8. The Final Stage is Set: Stalin Orders the Nanchang Uprising 9. The Nanchang Uprising and the CCP's 'False' Line 10. The Canton Commune and Trotsky's Expulsion from the Bolshevik Party 11. Bukharin and the Right Opposition 12. The 1929 Sino-Soviet War and the Creation of the Stalinist State. Conclusion: China and the Victory of 'Socialism in One Country'. Bibliography.

Through addressing ideas about history and politics in the modern period, and by encouraging comparative and inter-disciplinary work amongst East Asian specialists, the Leiden Series in Modern East Asian History and Politics seeks to combine Area Studies' focus on primary sources in the vernacular, with a distinct disciplinary edge.

The Leiden Series focuses on philosophy, politics, political thought, history, the history of ideas, and foreign policy as they relate to modern East Asia, and will emphasise theoretical approaches in all of these fields. As well as single-authored volumes, edited or multi-authored submissions that bring together a range of country specialisations and disciplines are welcome.

The Making of Modern Korea

Adrian Buzo, Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia

This fully updated second edition of The Making of Modern Korea provides a thorough, balanced and engaging history of Korea from 1910 to the present day. The text is unique in placing emphasis on Korea's regional and geographical context, through which Buzo analyzes the influence of bigger and more powerful states on the peninsula of Korea.

Key features of the book include:

- comprehensive coverage of Korean history
- up-to-date analysis of important contemporary developments, including North Korea's controversial missile and nuclear tests
- comparative focus on North and South Korea
- an examination of Korea within its regional context
- a detailed chronology and suggestions for further reading.

The Making of Modern Korea is a valuable one-volume resource for students of modern Korean history, international politics and Asian Studies.

Modern Japan

A Social and Political History

Elise K. Tipton, University of Sydney, Australia

Series: Nissan Institute/Routledge Japanese Studies

Reviews of the First Edition

'This is a history textbook with a 'difference'. Here modern Japan emerges in all its complexity and heterogeneity. The text keeps pace with the interest of tertiary students today in its focus on a broad range of people, and topics including changing architecture, town planning, tastes, fashion, popular culture, entertainment, and more.' -

Hélène Bowen Raddeker, Senior Lecturer, School of History, UNSW, Sydney

'Elise Tipton has produced a lively and compelling synthesis, full of human interest and interpretative insight, of modern Japanese social and political history down to recent times. Her narrative of what Japan's modern trajectory has meant for women and minorities whose experience has been too-long neglected is especially unforgettable. This is an excellent book. I recommend it wholeheartedly.' - Stephen S. Large, Formerly Reader in Modern Japanese History, University of Cambridge

This thoroughly updated second edition of Modern Japan provides a concise and fascinating introduction to the social, cultural and political history of modern Japan. Ranging from the Tokugawa period to the present day, the book charts the country's evolution into a modernized, economic and political world power.

Dealing with a broad and stimulating range of topics in an engaging style that will appeal to university students and the general reader, this book weaves social and political developments and balances a micro with a macro approach, introducing details about everyday lives that shed light on the bigger picture of major historical changes. Its systematic attention to gender issues, minorities and popular culture distinguishes this history and contributes to a sense of the complexity and diversity of modern Japanese society.

Completely up-to-date and including many new images and a timeline that charts important events, this highly accessible and comprehensive textbook is an essential resource for students, scholars and teachers of Japanese history, politics culture and society.

Selected Contents: 1. Tokugawa Background: The Ideal and the Real 2. The Mid-Century Crisis 3. The Early Meiji Revolution 4. The 1880s and 1890s: Defining a Japanese National Identity 5. Mabuchi: William Anderson: The Pictorial Arts of Japan

Western Sources on Japanese Art and Japonism, Series 4

Edited by Aiko Mabuchi

William Anderson (1842-1900) was a Scottish surgeon who lived in Tokyo in the early Meiji period. He also served as the first chairman of the Japan Society. He is now best remembered as a collector of Japanese art (his collection formed the basis of both the Japanese department of the British Museum and the illustrated book collection at the British Library), as well as the author of the landmark book, Pictorial Arts of Japan, a pioneering work on the history of Japanese art.

This facsimile reprint collection includes a reproduction of this book (reduced in size to 80% of its original dimensions) with many colour plates, its Japanese translation by Kencho Suyematsu, and the catalogue of Anderson's British Museum Japanese art collection, which he compiled himself.

State Terrorism and Political Identity in Indonesia

Fatally Belonging

Ariel Heryanto, The University of Melbourne, Australia

Approximately one million innocent Indonesians were killed by their fellow nationals, neighbours and kin at the height of an anti-communist campaign in the mid-1960s. This book investigates the profound political consequences of these mass killings in Indonesia upon public life, highlighting the historical specificities of the violence and comparable incidents of identity politics in more recent times.

Mixing theory with empirically based analysis, the book examines how the spectre of communism and the trauma experienced in the latter half of the 1960s remain critical in understanding the dynamics of terror, coercion and consent today. Heryanto challenges the general belief that the periodic anti-communist witch-hunts of recent Indonesian history are largely a political tool used by a powerful military elite and authoritarian government.

Despite the profound importance of the 1965-6 events it remains one of most difficult and sensitive topics for public discussion in Indonesia today. State Terrorism and Political Identity in Indonesia is one of the first books to fully discuss the mass killings, shedding new light on a largely unspoken and unknown part of Indonesia's history.

The Philippines

Mobilities, Identities, Globalization

James A. Tyner, Kent State University, USA

Series: Global Realities

Nearly five million migrant workers from the Philippines are employed in over 190 countries and territories. They work as doctors and domestic helpers, engineers and entertainers, seamstresses and surveyors. It is through their collective labor that the Philippines has assumed a global presence.

For over five centuries the Philippines has been integrated into the world economy. Only recently, however, has the Philippines been a pro-active agent in the production of a global economy. Since the 1970s the Philippine state, in connection with myriad private institutions, has recruited, trained, marketed, and deployed a mobile work-force. Annually, approximately one million migrant workers travel to all corners of the world. The Philippines seeks to understand how the Philippines has become the world's largest exporter of government-sponsored temporary contract labor and, in the process, has dramatically reshaped both the processes of globalization and also our understanding of globalization as concept.

Selected Contents: 1. Local Contexts, Distant Horizons 2. Manufacturing a Global Presence 3. Manila's Place in the World 4. Global-Philippines.Com 5. Performing Globalization 6. Beyond the Philippines

Gandhi

Benjamin Zachariah, University of Sheffield, UK

Series: Routledge Historical Biographies

The iconic figure of Gandhi has come to symbolise the Indian nationalist movement, both in India and throughout the world. This new biography looks at Gandhi, his actions and beliefs, placing them firmly in the context of India at the time. It gives an even-handed view of a man who has in the past been claimed by various schools of thought. It tells the story of Gandhi's early life, including his time as a student in Britain and his many years in South Africa, and his return home to take a pivotal role in the Indian nationalist movement. His commitment to non-violence has been an inspiration to generations, but other important elements of Gandhi's thought need to be examined too. Issues including his patriarchal views of women, how far he was successful in being inclusive of other castes and of Muslims, and how far he was pro-capitalist and aligned with the right, are fully analysed here. Gandhi's death by assassination became his last, and possibly most crucial contribution to the nature of the future India, enabling Nehru to push through a vision of India that was not a Hindu sectarian one.

Selected Contents: Introduction 1. Formative Years 2. The Making of a Colonial (Anti-)Intellectual 3. The Revolutionary Conservative 4. Bolshevik or Capitalist Tool? Interlude: Gandhi's Truths 5. Control from without: Gandhi vs the left 6. The Limits of Non-Violence. Conclusion: The Death of Gandhi and the Afterlife of Gandhism

Race, Liberalism and Medicine in British Bengal

Symptoms of Empire

Ishita Pande, Queen's University, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies on South Asian History

Ishita Pande brings together the study of modern South Asia, race theory, colonialism and empire and the history of medicine. It highlights the powerful role played by the idea of 'pathology' in the rationalization of imperial liberalism and the subsequent projects of modernity embraced by native experts in Bengal in the 'long' nineteenth century.

The Making of Western Indology

Henry Thomas Colebrooke and the East India Company

Ludo Rocher and Rosane Rocher, both at University of Pennsylvania, USA

Series: Royal Asiatic Society Books

Henry Thomas Colebrooke was an East India Company civil servant who became the father of modern Indology. He embodies the significant passage from the speculative yearnings attendant on eighteenth century colonial expansion, to the professional, transnational ethos of nineteenth century intellectual life and scholarly enquiry. Written by renowned academics in the field of Indology, and drawing on new sources, this book traces, explains and evaluates Colebrooke's importance. This modern biography will contribute to the reassessment of Oriental studies that is currently taking place.

Selected Contents: 1. From Heir to the Crown to Turnspit (London, 1765–1782) 2. Against the Grain (Rural Bengal, 1783–1794) 3. Law and Sanskrit (Mirzapur, 1794–1801) 4. Cricket in Colonial India 1780–1947

Boria Majumdar, La Trobe University, Melbourne, Australia

Series: Sport in the Global Society

This is an exacting social history of Indian cricket between 1780 and 1947. It considers cricket as a derivative sport, creatively adapted to suit modern Indian socio-cultural needs, fulfil political imperatives and satisfy economic aspirations. Majumdar argues that cricket was a means to cross class barriers and had a healthy following even outside the aristocracy and upper middle classes well over a century ago. Indeed, in some ways, the democratization of the sport anticipated the democratization of the Indian polity itself.

Boria Majumdar reveals the appropriation, assimilation and subversion of cricketing ideals in colonial and post-colonial India for nationalist ends. He exposes a sport rooted in the contingencies of the colonial and post-colonial context of nineteenth- and twentieth-century India. Cricket, to put it simply, is much more than a 'game' for Indians.

This study describes how the genealogy of their intense engagement with cricket stretches back over a century. It is concerned not only with the game but also with the end of cricket as a mere sport, with Indian cricket's commercial revolution in the 1930s, with ideals and idealism and their relative unimportance, with the decline of morality for reasons of realpolitik, and with the denunciation, once and for all, of the view that sport and politics do not mix.

Sri Aurobindo

A Contemporary Reader

Edited by Sachidananda Mohanty, University of Hyderabad, India

This book compiles some of the finest writings of Sri Aurobindo (1872–1950) - the nationalist, visionary, poet-philosopher. It reflects the range, depth and outreach of the moral, intellectual and spiritual vision of this versatile and multifaceted genius. It aims at providing, at one place, access to the key concepts, tenets, and the spirit of the extraordinary range of texts authored by him.

Although concretely grounded in contemporary times - with its location in a specific socio-cultural matrix - this work projects a body of writings that is certain to have lasting value. In particular, the compilation brings forth Sri Aurobindo's social vision and his role as a cultural critic: his views on ethnicity, his exposition of the key role language plays in the formation of communitarian identities, his crucial understanding of self-determination which has incidentally become an important aspect of human rights discourse today.

Situating the writings in a specific intellectual, spiritual and historical context, this collection will enable readers to appreciate the overall vision of Sri Aurobindo, in what can be conceived as a caravan of history of ideas in terms of a common heritage of humankind, and recent developments in theory and disciplinary practice, especially those pertaining to consciousness and future studies.

Journal of Modern Chinese History

Editors Wang Jianlang and Xu Xiuli both at Institute of Modern History, CASS, Beijing

In recent years, the main force for research into modern Chinese history has been Chinese scholars, who up until this point have not had a Western outlet for their scholarship. The Institute of Modern History of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences seeks to re-dress this with its international publication, the Journal of Modern Chinese History: a new platform for Chinese and foreign scholars to exchange ideas directly.

Fully refereed and published twice a year, the journal focuses on the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. It aims to promote research on modern Chinese history by encouraging discussion of political, economic, ideological, cultural and military history. The journal also encourages discussion on the history of society, foreign affairs, and gender as well as regional research and historiography.

The Journal of Modern Chinese History welcomes all original research including research articles, review articles and research notes, especially those reflecting recent developments in scholarship.
