Student Social Work Series

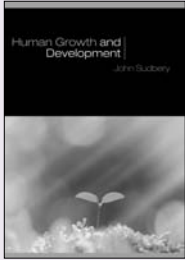

FORTHCOMING

Human Growth and Development

John Sudbery, University of Salford, UK

Series: Student Social Work

Social workers work with people at all stages of life, tackling a multitude of personal, social, health, welfare, legal and educational issues. As a result, all social work students need to understand human growth and development throughout the lifespan.

This introductory text provides a knowledge base about human development from conception to death. It is designed to encourage understanding of a wide range of experiences, including some very difficult ones, such as child abuse, the developmental trajectories of children in care, mental distress, the experience of people with dementia, the experience of torture victims and untimely bereavements. Using engaging narratives to illustrate real-life situations, the author analyses them to demonstrate the link between theory, and different theoretical approaches, and practice.

Packed with case studies, this student-friendly book includes overviews, summaries, questions and further reading in each chapter as well as a more formal academic section designed to challenge and intrigue students. A reference section contains a glossary and overviews of the principal theories discussed throughout the book. It is an essential read for all social work students.

Selected Contents: Introduction 1. Beginnings 2. A Secure Base 3. The Developing Child 4. Transitions and Adolescence 5. Living Independently 6. Sex, Love, Work and Children 7. Maturity and some of its Hazards 8. Adulthood and Ageing 9. Dying, Grief and Mourning 10. Fitting the Pieces Together 11. Essential Background and Glossary

FORTHCOMINGSocial Work and Social Policy

An Introduction

Jonathan Dickens, University of East Anglia, UK*Series: Student Social Work*

An understanding of social policy is vital for engaging practically with social work values, dealing with political and ethical questions about responsibility, liberty, and our understanding of 'the good society'. This textbook provides a comprehensive introduction to social policy, tailored to the needs of a social work audience

Jonathan Dickens analyses current policies and policy themes relevant to social work, and locates them in the context of fundamental social policy principles and debates. He discusses the nature of social policy and its relationship to social work, and covers fundamental themes such as:

- service user participation and involvement
- the balance between individual, societal and state responsibility for people's needs
- how best to target help on those who most 'deserve' it
- the proper roles of the state, the private sector, voluntary organisations and the family
- boundaries between the state's powers and family autonomy
- the meaning of 'inclusion' and the limits of acceptable difference.

Activities for reflection and analysis, including case studies and thinking points, are included throughout and each chapter ends with suggestions for further reading.

This text develops a dynamic and compelling framework for critical analysis of contemporary social policy and social work. It will be invaluable for students undertaking social work qualifying courses, all of whom are required to demonstrate an understanding of the social policy contexts of practice.

Selected Contents: Introduction Part 1: Key Models 1. What is Social Work For? 2. What is Social Policy About? 3. The Role of the State Part 2: Key Issues 4. Needs and Rights 5. Inequality, Poverty and Difference 6. Participation and Choice Part 3: Current Topics 7. Professionalism and Inter-professionalism 8. The Organisational Context 9. Social Work and Money Conclusion

A Rough Guide

Mark Doel, Sheffield Hallam University, UK*Series: Student Social Work*

Placements can be one of the most exciting parts of your social work training but also one of the most daunting. This guide will help you to make the most of your practice learning opportunities.

The guide highlights how you can make the most of your placement, as well as anticipating some of the problem areas and pitfalls to avoid. It covers:

- preparing for your placement
- getting to grips with placement documentation
- understanding how you might learn on placement
- integrating theory with practice
- non-traditional placements
- anticipating difficulties and dealing with them
- getting the best from assessment and evaluation.

Using a cast of 'fellow travellers' – students, work-based supervisors, practice educators and college tutors – to illustrate issues raised, the guide is accessible and contains plenty of case studies. It is the ideal book for anyone wanting to make sure their placement goes as well as possible.

Selected Contents: Introduction Fellow Travellers 1. Reading Up 2. Getting There 3. Documentation 4. Different Styles 5. Supervision, Direct Observation, Live Teaching and Simulation 6. Making Sense of Theory and Practice 7. Off the Beaten Track 8. When the Going gets Tough 9. New and Experienced Travellers 10. Telling Others Placement Language (Glossary)

A Textbook of Social Work

Brian Sheldon, Formerly Centre for Evidence-Based Social Services, Peninsula Medical School, Exeter, UK and Geraldine Macdonald, Queen's University Belfast, UK

'A refreshingly committed book which presents the complexity of social work in a lively and accessible manner. A real page-turner, written with conviction, wit and style; this book surveys social work with an intellectually justified optimism.' – Professor Mark Doel, Research Professor of Social Work, Sheffield Hallam University, UK

A Textbook of Social Work provides a comprehensive discussion of social work practice and its evidence-base. It strikes a balance between the need for social workers to understand the social, economic, cultural, psychological and interpersonal factors which give rise to clients' problems, and the need for them to know how best to respond with practical measures.

Divided into three parts. The text covers the history and development of social work as a movement and profession in the first part, and social work methods and approaches in the second. The final part looks at the major specialisms, including, among others, chapters on: children and families; youth offenders and substance misusers; social work and mental health; disabled people; older people.

Providing a comprehensive guide to conceptual and methodological issues in social work and containing plentiful case studies and examples, this book is an essential read for social work students, as well as a valuable resource for practitioners and academics.

Selected Contents: Part 1: The History and Development of Social Work 1. A Brief History of Social Work 2. Theory and Practice in Social Work 3. General Trends from Studies of the Effectiveness of Social Work 4. Evidence-based Practice Part 2: Social Work Methods and Approaches, including Assessment Procedures 5. Assessment, Monitoring and Evaluation 6. Social Casework and Task-Centered Casework 7. Cognitive-Behavioural Approaches 8. Systemic Approaches, Including Family Therapy 9. Social Work and Community Work Part 3: Client Groups 10. Social Work with Children and Families 11. Social Work with Looked After Children 12. Social Work with Young Offenders 13. Social Work and Mental Health 14. Social Work with People with Disabilities 15. Social Work with Older People

Psychology for Social Workers

Black Perspectives on Human Development and Behaviour

Lena Robinson, University of the West of Scotland, UK

'This is a unique book that draws together robust research-based evidence on black perspectives in human development and behaviour from North America and Britain. The wide variety of topics covered in this book should help inspire much discussion and debate in the social work field, and will generate theoretical and research questions for years to come.'

Tackling Social Exclusion

John Pierson, Staffordshire University, UK

Praise for the first edition:

'An excellent text which is much needed. It reaffirms social work's commitment to empowering communities and the individuals within them, as well as its role in tackling disadvantage - it's good to see poverty put back on the social work agenda! While its primary target is social workers, it will also be good for other workers in care and related fields and anyone working at grass roots in the community.' – Kay Sargent, Department of Policy Studies, University of Bristol, UK

FORTHCOMINGTheorising Social Exclusion

Edited by Ann Taket, Beth R. Crisp, Annemarie Nevill, Greer Lamaro, Melissa Graham and Sarah Barter-Godfrey, all at Deakin University, Australia

Theorising Social Exclusion first reviews and reflects upon existing thinking, literature and research into social exclusion and social connectedness, outlining an integrated theory of social exclusion across dimensions of social action and along pathways of social processes. A series of commissioned chapters then develop and illustrate the theory by addressing the machinery of social exclusion and connectedness, the pathways towards exclusion and, finally, experiences of exclusion and connection.

This innovative book takes a truly multidisciplinary approach and focuses on the often-neglected cultural and social aspects of exclusion. It will be of interest to academics in fields of public health, health promotion, social work, community development, disability studies, occupational therapy, policy, sociology, politics, and environment.

FORTHCOMINGEuropean Social Policy and Social Work

Citizenship-based Social Work

Hans van Ewijk

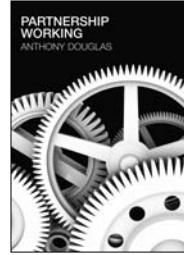

The book discusses international and national social work strategies and practice and investigates the responsibilities for social welfare held by the state, the market and civil society. Van Ewijk then elaborates a new concept of citizenship based social work which supports and encourages self-responsibility, social responsibility and the implementation of social rights.

An attempt to integrate different roots and social professions in an overarching new concept, this book particularly looks at European Union countries. It is suitable for social work students and academics with an interest in social policy and international social work.

Partnership Working

Anthony Douglas, Suffolk County Council, UK

'Anthony Douglas is to be congratulated on producing a well researched, timely, practical and instructive book on successful partnership working. It can be done. I hope that the 'Good Practice' outlined in this valuable book soon becomes standard practice everywhere.' – Lord Laming, Chair of the Victoria Climbié Inquiry

This book is both an introduction and an in-depth analysis of partnership working across the public sector in the UK. In a comprehensive discussion of partnership working, Anthony Douglas explores:

- the history of partnership working, its theoretical base and practical applications
- why partnership working is important
- how professionals are already working together
- how to develop good partnerships and address common difficulties
- how to ensure that partnership working really does result in better practice
- the future of partnership working.

NEWEvidence-based Social Work

A Critical Stance

Mel Gray, Debbie Plath and Stephen Webb, all at University of Newcastle, Australia

This book provides a critical analysis of evidence-based practice in social work. It introduces readers to the fast changing research, policy, legislative, and practice context. It discusses what constitutes knowledge in social work, the values and beliefs that lie behind EBP and problems of implementation, formalization and resource management. Reflecting on the challenges of transferring evidence-based practice to frontline social work practice, Gray, Plath and Webb argue that social work practice is not easily measured and systematized into best practice guidelines that disseminate proven diagnostic and effective intervention knowledge.

This new and updated edition of the vital human behavior textbook for graduate-level social work students emphasizes the biopsychosocial framework with a psychodynamic and developmental perspective, with updated information on contemporary thinking and the application of postmodern theory. Written from the perspective of a classroom teacher, faculty advisor, and clinician, Human Behavior in the Social Environment, discusses current social issues such as the elderly, violence, and abuse.

With case vignettes, chapter-by-chapter learning exercises, and additional readings, as well as material from literary works, biographies, and newspapers, this copiously-referenced volume illustrates the complexities of human existence, the multiple social conflicts operating in society, and the relevance of social policy dilemmas. This new edition also brings information up-to-date by incorporating many references to current events.

FORTHCOMINGChildhood and Youth Studies

Critical Issues

Edited by Derek Kassem, Lisa Murphy and Elizabeth Taylor, all at Liverpool John Moores University, UK

Childhood and Youth Studies presents an informed and critical commentary on a range of key issues related to children and childhood, from birth to eighteen years. Challenging current orthodoxies within the adult world on the nature of childhood, it is an essential text for students of childhood and youth studies as well as those studying relevant professional qualifications in social work, teaching and health.

Exploring ideas from the historical development of childhood to the demonising of youth, it is divided into five clearly defined sections, each with their own editorial introduction which highlights the key themes. The sections focus on:

- the concept and creation of childhood
- child development
- ideas of risk, protection and childhood
- the politics of childhood
- international perspectives on childhood.

TEXTBOOK2ND EDITION*Introduction to the Anatomy and Physiology of Children

A Guide for Students of Nursing, Child Care and Health

Janet MacGregor, Fatima Memorial Hospital, Pakistan

Fully updated, this new edition provides an introduction to normal, healthy physical development for all professionals who specialise in working with children. The author, an experienced nurse teacher, guides the reader through the key changes in body systems and functions from embryo to birth through childhood and adolescence.

Concise and clearly written, this introductory text will be essential reading for all those working with children and families in the health and social care sector, enabling them to ensure children enjoy a safe and healthy childhood in line with Every Child Matters and new national service framework directives.

3RD EDITION*From Birth to Five Years

Children's Developmental Progress

Mary D. Sheridan, Ajay Sharma, Wilfred Sheldon Children's Centre, St Giles Hospital, UK and Helen Cockerill, Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust, UK

'The third edition is even better than those that came before.'
– Archives of Disease in Childhood

'This updated edition of a classic text from pediatric specialists Sheridan (a researcher for 40-plus years) and the London-based Sharma (pediatrician), and Cockerill (speech and language therapist) is a valuable reference in child development...a practical work suitable for undergraduates interested in child development, early childhood education, communication disorders, or medicine...Highly recommended.' – Choice

From Birth to Five Years, based on the pioneering work of Mary Sheridan, has become a classic guide to the developmental progress of pre-school children. It is widely recognised as an invaluable reference for professionals training or working in health, education and social care.

Features of this completely revised edition include:

- charts describing key stages in the development of motor, perception, communication, play, independence and social skills, updated in the light of recent research and supported by over 120 illustrations
- information on what we know about how children develop.
- a new section on the development of attention and self-regulation
- guidelines for the assessment of children through observation and interaction
- advice on when to refer to specialist services.

Guidance is offered on ages at which children typically achieve key stages, whilst recognising individual variation in the rate of development and the influence of the child's environment. Based on an ethos of health promotion and the need for a common assessment framework, the book will be welcomed by all those who work with infants and young children.

Social Work Practice with African American Families

An Intergenerational Perspective

Edited by Cheryl Waites, Wayne State University, USA

Social workers looking to provide competent practice with African American families may be more effective by using a new strengths-based approach from an intergenerational perspective. Social Work Practice with African American Families presents a comprehensive look at this new approach to view, assess, and provide services to multigenerational families and communities. This insightful resource closely examines this useful innovative framework that encourages opportunities for action to create solutions for survival and change. The approach dynamically considers the changing demographics in American society, key issues, and the various challenges pertinent to the African American community.

The Emotional Experience of Adoption

A Psychoanalytic Perspective

Edited by Debbie Hindle, Scottish Institute of Human Relations, Scotland, UK and Graham Shulman, The Tavistock Clinic, London, UK

'Focusing on the trauma experienced by most adopted children prior to being taken into care, this book conveys the damage these children have sustained and the impact of this on their new family and the professionals involved. Psychoanalytic ideas both help understanding and provide a means of amelioration by offering treatment possibilities and a consultation framework.'

The Evaluator's Cookbook

Exercises for Participatory Evaluation with Children and Young People

Angus McCabe, University of Birmingham, UK and Katrice Horsley, Freelance Narrative Consultant, UK

The Evaluator's Cookbook contains twenty-one participatory evaluation exercises for use with children, young people and families/community groups.

Attractively and clearly presented, the exercises are very easy to use and come with suggestions for use and instructions on how to create the equipment needed. They will appeal to a wide range of people and can be used in a variety of informal and formal settings. Most of the exercises are suitable for use with disabled children or children with special needs, as well as people with English as a second language. The book also explores why, how and where participatory research and evaluation should take place and provides suggestions on how the findings can be presented in imaginative ways.

FORTHCOMINGA Handbook of Children and Young People's Participation

Perspectives from Theory and Practice

Edited by Barry Percy-Smith, University of the West of England, UK and Nigel Thomas, University of Central Lancashire, UK

A Handbook of Children's and Young People's Participation brings key thinkers and practitioners from across the globe together to provide an authoritative overview of contemporary theory and practice around children's participation.

Involving children and young people in aspects of everyday life, as well as engaging them with public policy, is an area of dramatic growth in social care, health and educational practice. In addition to chapters introducing core concepts and debates in the area, the book contains theoretical contributions that take forward our understanding of children's participation and a number of reflective accounts of practice, interspersed by critically reflective commentaries.

Understanding Child Abuse

The Partners of Child Sex Offenders Tell Their Stories

Terry Philpot

'Through sensitive interviews, Terry Philpot reveals the range of feelings and emotions experienced by mothers whose male partners have sexually abused children. He provides an invaluable insight into the varied motivations and behaviours of sex offenders and the ways their offending can be addressed. He surveys the available research and presents the key findings in an immensely readable and engaging style. This is a valuable contribution to a long neglected aspect of sex abuse.' – Sir Roger Singleton CBE, Chair of the Independent Safeguarding Authority

FORTHCOMINGViolence and Abuse Issues

Cross-cultural Perspectives for Health and Social Services

Lee Ann Hoff, Life Crisis Institute, USA

Health and social service providers are in pivotal positions to provide preventive and restorative services to those affected by violent and abusive behaviour. This comprehensive textbook presents theoretical background and practical strategies for doing so, providing a solid knowledge base for good practice in this area. It emphasizes the interdisciplinary aspects of violence and victim/survivor care and addresses violence over the life span, covering:

- child sexual and physical abuse
- sexual assault of adults
- battering and emotional abuse of intimate partners
- elder abuse
- perpetrators of violence and abuse
- violence in learning and work environments
- vicarious trauma and self-care
- interconnections between various forms of violence, including socially approved violence in the media and in war.

3RD EDITION

The Child in Mind

A Child Protection Handbook

Judy Barker, City and Hackney Primary Care Trust, UK and Deborah Hodes, Camden Primary Care Trust and University College London Hospital, UK

Praise for the second edition:

'This is a concise and informative textbook for health practitioners whose work brings them into contact with children or families...it provides a wealth of information.' – Nursing Standard

All public sector workers in contact with children and families, both in health care and allied services, need access to clearly written information about what to do if they are concerned about the safety and welfare of a child. Ensuring the safety of children who are at risk of harm is not an easy undertaking. It is sometimes difficult to assess the significance of information about a child, to gauge its seriousness or decide what to do next. This handbook will help health service workers negotiate the complexities of child protection practice, with the aim of preventing abuse and neglect and protecting children from further harm once it has occurred.

FORTHCOMINGUnderstanding and Addressing Adult Sexual Attraction to Children

A Study of Paedophiles in Contemporary Society

Sarah D. Goode, University of Winchester, UK

Paedophiles exist and we must develop ways of living with this fact whilst ensuring that children are kept safe. This groundbreaking book demystifies the field of adult sexual attraction to children, countering the emotionality surrounding this topic of paedophilia in the popular media by careful presentation of research data and interview material. Addressing how we can work together to reduce sexual offending in this population, Understanding and Addressing Adult Sexual Attraction to Children bridges the gulf in understanding between those who want to protect children and those who feel sexual attraction to children and recognises that they are sometimes the same people.

Intimate Fatherhood

A Sociological Analysis

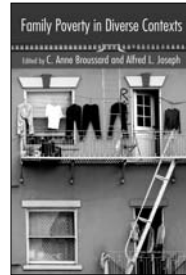

Esther Dermott, University of Bristol, UK

The book addresses the extent to which fatherhood has changed by examining key dichotomies - culture versus conduct, involved versus uninvolved and public versus private. Dermott maintains that our current view of good fatherhood is related to new ideas of intimacy. She argues that in order to understand contemporary fatherhood, we must recognise the centrality of the emotional father-child relationship, that the importance of breadwinning has been overstated and that flexible involvement is viewed as more important than the amount of time spent in childcare.

2ND EDITION

Ethical Issues in Youth WorkEdited by Sarah Banks, University of Durham, UK

This fully updated new edition of Ethical Issues in Youth Work presents a comprehensive overview and discussion of the core ethical dilemmas facing youth workers in their everyday practice.

The first part offers a clear outline of the nature of professional ethics, relevant ethical theories and an overview of the policy and organisational context of youth work. The second part is grounded firmly in practice, with experts in the field exploring specific issues that raise ethical challenges for youth workers, such as:

- when to breach confidentiality
- the ethics of participation/active citizenship
- how to balance the roles of control, empowerment and education
- negotiating personal and professional values, interests and commitments in youth work
- dilemmas for faith-based workers
- issues for workers supporting young people as researchers and as active citizens.

FORTHCOMINGYoung People and Sexual Exploitation

'It's not hidden, you just aren't looking'

Jenny Pearce, University of Bedfordshire, UK

Jenny J. Pearce draws on young people's voices to explore the difficulties that arise for researchers and for practitioners when working with sexually exploited young people. While child protection interventions must guide social work, she argues that other agencies such as health, education, housing and training each have a role to play in supporting a sexually exploited young person.

Young People and Sexual Exploitation will be essential reading for anyone interested in preventing the sexual exploitation of children and young people. It will be particularly relevant for academics, students, practitioners and policy makers in the fields of social policy and social work, child and family work, child protection or youth work.

NEWDigital Welfare for the Third Age

Health and Social Care Informatics for Older People

Edited by Brian D. Loader, University of York, UK, Michael Hardey, Hull York Medical School, UK and
Leigh Keeble, University of York, UK

This book is about the ways digital technology can contribute to the welfare of older people. The Internet, mobile phones and other technologies have changed how we live and work. Such technologies also shape how services for older people are organised in ways that potentially place carers and older people at the centre of service provision. Digital Welfare is part of the broader project in Britain and elsewhere to adopt new information and communications technologies (ICTs) to organise and deliver health and social welfare services. This includes mundane technologies like an alarm to call for help to complex telecare 'smart homes' and electronic patient records. The intended and unintended consequences of such new technologies must be explored if we are to benefit from these innovations. Based on recent research this book seeks to highlight and examine the new opportunities and dilemmas that confront older people and all those concerned with their welfare in the network society.

This edited collection provides original contributions from leading academics and researchers in the field to access the evidence for improved professional integration and user-centred health and social care services for older people arising from health informatics. Digital Welfare for the Third Age will be of interest to all those working with older people.

Selected Contents: 1. Introduction Part 1: Towards Integrated Service Provision? 2. Are there Limits to the Integration of Care for Older People? 3. Partnership in assessment? A new, updated edition of the classic "how-to" guide for social work supervisors

Filled with direct and composite case examples from the front lines of gerontological social work, this valuable text that provides practitioners at all levels with useable and realistic supervisory techniques. Arranged in five unique sections, this useful guide looks at concerns central to the changing field of practice. Part one gives an overview of the social work perspective. Parts two and three consider practice and administrative issues. Supervision of interns is covered in part four, and part five expands the scope of original edition by discussing the similarities and differences between home care and long-term care settings.

FORTHCOMINGEvidence-Based Interventions for Social Work in Health Care

Marcia Egan, University of Tennessee, USA

The result of extensive systematic reviews, Evidence-based Interventions for Social Work in Health Care provides substantive in-depth knowledge of empirically based interventions specifically for major and emerging medical diseases and health conditions particularly affected diverse, at-risk and marginalized populations. It outlines best practices for the psychosocial problems associated with the emerging chronic and major health conditions of the twenty-first century, such as paediatric asthma, HIV-affected children, Type I and Type II diabetes, chronic pain, and adult hypertension. The interventions discussed are broken down in terms of for whom, by whom, when, under what circumstances, for what duration, and for what level client system the intervention has proven most effective.

FORTHCOMING IN 20103RD EDITION*Social Work in Health Settings

Practice in Context

Edited by Toba Schwaber Kerson, Bryn Mawr College, USA and Judith McCoyd, Rutgers University, USA

Social Work in Health Settings is a classic text for students and practitioners. It is the most comprehensive book of its kind, introducing social work students to a broad range of clients and providing an overview of many social work settings and services in the health arena. Reflecting the enormous changes in policy, health care delivery, insurance systems, and the diagnosis and treatment of many conditions, this third edition features all new or fully updated chapters.

The text presents a 'practice in context' framework which is then applied in twenty-nine casebook chapters, covering a wide variety of health care settings – from working with survivors of domestic violence through supporting people with HIV to services for military personnel. Each chapter considers the impact of policy, technology and organization on the situation and explores the key practice decisions that structure the helping relationship: the definition of the client; goals; contract and objectives; meeting place; use of time; strategies and interventions; stance of the social worker; use of resources outside of the social worker/client relationship; reassessment and evaluation; and transfer or termination.

Understanding the Effects of Extreme Stress and of Psychological Harm

Edited by Victoria L. Banyard, University of New Hampshire, USA, Valerie J. Edwards, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, USA and Kathleen Kendall-Tackett, Texas Tech University, USA

'This important and well-documented book describes the significant role that child abuse and later trauma play in adult health and well-being. Generally unrecognized, because their origins are buried in time, concealed by shame, and avoided in medical practice, the authors help us understand how to become comfortable and effective in routinely exploring these problems with patients.'

Defeating Autism

A Damaging Delusion

Michael Fitzpatrick, Barton House Health Centre, UK

In Defeating Autism, Michael Fitzpatrick, a family doctor and father of a son with autism, questions the scientific basis of environmental explanations of autism and exposes the incoherence of unorthodox 'biomedical' theories and therapies. Campaigns promising to 'defeat or cure autism now' have attracted much support among parents struggling with their difficult children. But the crusade against autism risks dehumanising and stigmatising those who are identified as autistic and their families. This compelling book is essential reading for students and professionals working in the field of autism, as well as academics concerned with the public understanding of science and the treatment of scientific and medical controversies in the media.

The End of Stigma?

Changes in the Social Experience of Long-term Illness

Gill Green, University of Essex, UK

This innovative book investigates the roots of contemporary experiences of stigma, throwing new light on the phenomenon by examining a variety of long term conditions.

The book takes Fukuyama's notion of 'The End of History' and examines contemporary challenges to the stigma associated with chronic illness. Award-winning author Gill Green examines cases of HIV, mental illness and substance misuse, to provide new insights into stigma in health. She demonstrates that people with long-term conditions refuse to be defined by their condition and highlights their increasingly powerful voice. The End of Stigma? will be of interest to a wide range of students and health professionals in medical sociology, health studies and social care.

Behavioral Medicine

A Social Worker's Guide

John S. Wodarski, University of Tennessee, USA

Behavioral Medicine discusses the composition of effective psychosocial treatment and presents a cost analysis of social work and its services. By defining the problems that need to be addressed in health care costs and management, applying research and using studies, this text presents an effective model for health care organizations. It also presents a profile of the Behavioral Social Worker, which defines the abilities needed to be effective in the role and looks at the key impact areas for a behavioral health model. This is a comprehensive guide for social workers preparing to work in health care organizations, and for existing social workers, academics, and practitioners of behavioral medicine in health settings.

Disabled People and the Right to Life

The Protection and Violation of Disabled People's Most Basic Human Rights

Edited by Luke Clements, Cardiff University, UK and Janet Read, University of Warwick, UK

'Human rights' has increasingly come to be seen as a significant framework, both to aid understanding of the experiences of those who face oppression, and to underpin social, legal and political measures to counter it. Disabled People and the Right to Life uses this framework to explore how disabled people's right to life is understood in different national contexts and the ways in which they are – or are not – afforded protection under the law, emphasizing the social, cultural and historical forces and circumstances which have promoted disabled people's right to life or legitimated its violation.

FORTHCOMINGGrief, Loss and Bereavement Care

An Evidence-based Approach for Health and Social Care

Edited by Peter Wimpenny, Robert Gordon University, UK

Bereavement is a challenging area for everyone, including health and social care practitioners who are often well placed to offer help and support to the bereaved. This invaluable text draws together a comprehensive evidence-base for supporting grieving people from a wide range of research, and applies it to a health and social care context.

Accessible and practical throughout, each chapter identifies key recommendations from the research and includes thinking points to help the reader apply them to practice. An overview chapter examines theoretical perspectives and defines key concepts, such as grief, loss, bereavement, mourning and bereavement care. Part one explores bereavement across the lifespan, from childhood to older people. Part two looks at different interventions and care settings.

Grief, Loss and Bereavement Care is suitable for students and professionals in health and social care who want to gain an understanding of bereavement and bereavement care.

Bereavement Narratives

Continuing Bonds in the Twenty-first Century

Christine Valentine, University of Bath, UK

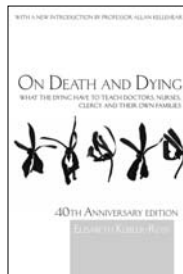

'By focusing on the continuing bond survivors maintain with the deceased, Valentine demonstrates how grief narratives are nested in the remembered relationship with the living person, in the story the person as he or she died, and in the culture's values and beliefs. Valentine has listened closely to stories of bereaved people in this well-done qualitative study, and in doing so, she has made a significant contribution to the current scholarly and clinical understanding of grief.' – Dennis Klass, Professor Emeritus, Webster University, USA

FORTHCOMINGManagement and Leadership in Social Care

Theoretical Perspectives

John Lawler, Bradford University, UK and Andy Bilson, University of Central Lancashire, UK

Management and leadership are increasingly important within the organisation and delivery of social care services and now form part of the post qualification framework for social workers. Yet, whilst there is a relatively broad understanding of management concepts and their application in social care, students and managers are often encouraged to not challenge the status quo. Furthermore, leadership is open to a wide range of interpretations and is often ill-defined with the expectation that we share a common understanding of the term.

This text promotes an appreciation of the development of management and leadership thinking and the different themes which inform current ideas on those topics. It considers these topics from other theoretical standpoints in order to stimulate readers to consider their own experience and expectations of management and leadership. It then demonstrates ways in which these standpoints might be used to analyse the work, management and leadership within social care organisations and ways in which such organisations might then develop, encouraging reflection on current practice.

This text is essential reading for students of management and leadership in social care as well as being an invaluable resource for managers who simply wish to reflect on their practice.

Interdependency and Care Over the Lifecourse

Sophia Bowlby, University of Reading, UK,
Susan Gregory, University of Edinburgh, UK and Linda McKie, Glasgow Caledonian University, UK

Series: Relationships and Resources

Interdependency and Care Over the Lifecourse focuses on the 'informal care' provided by family members, neighbours and friends, exploring the ways in which it is woven into the organization of people's everyday lives. This volume is comprised of three parts. The first covers the context of care in contemporary society, and what it encompasses. The second part looks at different themes within informal care, using the examples of illness and health, child care, elderly care and communities of care. Finally, the authors develop a framework within which we can examine the significance to practices of care throughout the lifecourse of: understandings and expectations of care; emotional exchanges involved in care; memories and anticipations of giving and receiving care; the social nature of the spaces and places in which care is carried out; the practical time-space scheduling necessary to caring activities.

This book is an invaluable contribution to the care work debate and will be of interest to students and researchers of care work, sociology of the family and social policy.

*Sexuality, Culture and Health SeriesSexuality, Health and Human Rights

Sonia Corrêa, Associação Brasileira Interdisciplinar de AIDS (ABIA), Brazil, Rosalind Petchesky, City University of New York, USA and Richard Parker, Columbia University, USA

This new work surveys how rapid changes taking place at the start of the twenty-first century in social, cultural, political and economic domains impact on sexuality, health and human rights. What were once viewed as private matters have become public, and an array of new social movements – transgender, intersex, sex worker, people living with HIV – have come into the open. Offering a unique framework for understanding this new world, set in the context of the major theoretical debates of recent decades, this book will be of interest to professionals, advocates and policy researchers and is suitable for a wide range of courses covering areas such as gender studies, human sexuality, public health and social policy.

FORTHCOMINGMobility, Sexuality and AIDS

Edited by Felicity Thomas, Institute of Education, UK, Mary Haour-Knipe and Peter Aggleton, Institute of Education, University of London, UK

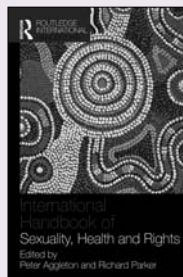

Over the past two decades, migration across and within borders has intensified, raising important questions concerning the well-being both of migrant groups and host communities. Alongside this growing complexity, fears have been voiced about possible links between migration and HIV, with calls being made to contain or control migrant populations.

This volume challenges these assumptions via a series of interlinked chapters prepared by well-known international experts exploring migrants' experiences as they relate to sexuality and to HIV susceptibility and impact. The book contains data from around the world, including the USA, the UK, sub-Saharan Africa, Australia, Central America and China

Original Essays and Interviews

Edited by Steven Seidman, Nancy Fischer and Chet Meeks

Breaking new ground, both substantively and stylistically, this book offers students, academics and researchers an accessible, engaging introduction and overview of this emerging field. Its central premise is to explore the social character of sexuality, the role of social differences such as race or nationality in creating sexual variation, and the ways sex is entangled in relations of power and inequality. Through this novel approach the field of sexuality is therefore considered, for the first time, in multicultural, global, and comparative terms and from a truly social perspective.
